'ROUND

There is a certain person of whom you know who prides himself upon his forceful arguments. And this said person, however, is as dumb as they make 'em.

He is the sort of a person who states that black is white and therefore black is white, no matter how many proofs may be shown him that he is all wet.

No matter what the subject is, he is the person who knows what it is all about. And it's useless to try to convince him that he doesn't know what he's talking about.

In other words, he's the type of a person whom one would like to argue with, using an ax.

And then there is a woman of whom we know. She's the type who must be the head of everything. In other words, if John Jones decides that he would like to go out for a car ride, she says absolutely no! And a few minutes later she changes the conversation, shifts it around and remarks, "Let's all go for an automobile ride!" and she says it as if it were the first time that it had been mentioned all evening.

She's the type who goes to parties with her husband, necks with every other man in the place, and then gets burned up if her husband even looks at another woman.

And then her sister gets a new dress, she refuses to be around her or go out with her—in spite of the fact that this woman of whom we speak collects a new frock every week.

She's the type that will make a scene if she sees other persons, but when they use a bit of sarcasm upon her, she's insulted.

And she loves to argue! Oh, my! One of these days we are going to argue with her and use a sawed off shotgun to drive home our point.

It's no wonder that Mark Twain once upon a time remarked that he'd like to hang the whole human race and get this comedy completed.

Richmond Burglar Suspects Held In Oakland

POLICE WILL QUESTION PAIR

Possibility that persons who burglarized offices of two Richmond dentists during the Thanksgiving holiday may be in Oakland jail was seen in the arrest of two men in Livermore this week, both of whom had gold and dental materials in their possession.

John Miller and J. B. McDonald were arrested in Livermore when they were alleged to have had a large quantity of dental equipment. The two men are believed to be residents of Oakland and work as steam fitters.

The offices of Dr. Frances Kent and Dr. C. J. Farlinger in the building at 271 Tenth street were entered during the Thanksgiving holiday and an undetermined amount of gold stolen.

Dr. Farlinger lost approximately $6 worth of gold, he reported to police, while the amount lost by Dr. Kent had not been announced. Entrance to both offices was gained by prying locks from the doors.

Richmond police were awaiting word from Oakland police in an effort to learn whether the two men were responsible for the two robberies here. It was expected they would be questioned by a Richmond officer, but no word has been released by Oakland.

Several Oakland dentists were reported to have lost gold in robberies committed recently.

Trial Of Army Doctor Halted

KANSAS CITY, Kan. Dec. 5.—UP—A second weary day of questioning veniemen brought the trial of Major Charles A. Shepard to recess late today without completion of a jury.

He has questioned more than a hundred Kansas farmers and tradesmen, elderly men with families. Two panels have been exhausted under his maneuvering for men agreeable to his case.

"Anyone who has had actual theoretical experience, in the world of business and professions knows that most married women are working for a very definite reason," Mrs. Norton told guests and fellow club members. "There are very few married women working who are not supporting someone or educating someone. I believe that most women would really prefer to stay in the home."

WETS FIGHT IN SENATE ROW

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—UP—With the talkative senate in recess, the administration relief program met formidable opposition today in the form of that party stalwart, assistant senate floor leader, Charles L. McNary, Republican, Oregon, and the cooperating Democratic leader, Senator Joseph Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas.

Meanwhile, it was learned that President Hoover was preparing to combat actively the campaign in congress for relief beyond the administration proposals. In this situation, it appeared likely that the battle may go to the vet, stage unless the strong Republican house exercises a whip-hand over the bills.

Whether or not it is the "end of the honeymoon" come so soon after the post-election harmony agreement remains to be seen. McNary's agriculture committee took formal action to "table" a $25,000,000 bill which would require secretary Arthur Hyde put before them.

More Talk

The senate agriculture committee by unanimous vote decided to report the $60,000,000 bill, after Robinson said the smaller amount would degrade farmers by forcing them to accept Red Cross charity.

Message Reveals Murder Of Girl

WHITTIER, Dec. 5.—UP—Four words scribbled in pencil on a white cloth dresser cover today convinced deputy sheriffs that Helen Hoover, pretty 22-year old divorcee, had been forced to accompany her rejected suitor to the apartment where he shot her to death and then ended his own life.

The bodies of Mrs. Hoover and Paul Melo were found in the apartment of Theodore D. Haugh, a friend of Melo, Haugh returned home and stumbled over the prostrate forms. He said Melo evidently had known where the key was kept.

On a dresser cover in Mrs. Hoover's home was a few word message to her sister, Agnes: "Ag—Paul—Gun—Force."

After finding the message, police dropped their previous belief that Mrs. Hoover had accompanied Melo willingly. Her father, P. J. Regan, said that just after his daughter had obtained a divorce she met Melo. Several months ago she attempted to break with Melo and he slashed her face and arms with a knife. They had not seen each other recently.

PRINTS ON CAR HELD CLUE

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—That it was not six men, but five men and a woman who held up a Southern Pacific train near Nobel, Alameda county early last month and escaped with $56,000 was practically assured last night by investigators who declared fingerprints found in the car used by the gang tallied exactly with those of Mrs. Ellen Ellis widow of the slain bandit leader, Frank E. Smith.

Shortly after the time of the hold holdup, it was suggested that a woman may have controlled one of the machine guns which covered the train crew and passengers.

Mrs. Ellis was believed to have been the one wearing a long overcoat which covered her features and hid her blonde hair. Hands of one of the gunmen were said by witnesses of the holdup not to be like those of a man.

IRISH TO MEET TROJAN TEAM TODAY

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—UP—Notre Dame and Southern California will meet in a titanic football struggle in the Coliseum tomorrow, with the almost undisputed national championship at stake.

A crowd of 90,000 will witness the fifth consecutive meeting of these two teams, while millions of football fans throughout the nation will eagerly await the outcome of a battle that perhaps has attracted more interest than any other one football game in history.

Southern California ruled a 19 to 8 betting favorite tonight, with indications that the odds might even ascend higher.

Fair Weather

Fair skies and moderate temperature, with light variable winds, is the weather forecast for tomorrow, making playing conditions ideal.

Notre Dame is unbeaten and undefeated, having run up a string of eighteen straight victories during the past two seasons. Southern California suffered an early season 7 to 6 defeat at the hands of Washington State, but the Trojans have since reached heights which prove that setback is no indication of their present strength.

Scoring 382 points in nine games, Southern California leads the entire nation in scoring. Defensively, the Trojans seem equally strong, having had only six touchdowns scored against them, two of which were made against the reserves.

Offensive Battle

All indications point to a strictly offensive battle, with both teams attempting to score early and often. Both coaches, Howard Jones and Knute Rockne, openly admit that they plan to have their team play offensive football.

Physically Southern California seems to have the edge. Whereas Notre Dame is going into its third hard test in succession, Southern California has had ten days to get in shape following a 32 to 0 victory over Washington Thanksgiving day.

Southern California will carry an advantage in weight, the Trojans averaging 189 pounds per man to 183 for the Irish. Most of this extra weight is concentrated in the line.

Lineups

Never before have as many all-American candidates been pitted against each other in one game. Each team has perhaps half a dozen men bidding for all-American berths, with Ernie Pinckert, Orville Mohler, Marshall Duffield, John Baker, Garrett Arbelbide and Ralph Wilcox outstanding for Southern California and Frank Co-lins for Notre Dame. Every conceivable type of offensive play is expected in this grand finale between two of the nation's greatest eleven.

The lineups:

U. S. C.	Pos.	N. D.
Wilcox	LT.	Host
Hall	LT.	Conver
Baker	LG.	Kassiss
Williamson	C.	Yarr
Shaw	RG.	Metzger

OAKLAND DUCKS RECEIVE $2000

Over Division Of Cities Theme Of Realty Study

OAKLAND, Dec. 6.—Convinced that everything is satisfactory at Oakland's free municipal boarding house, thousands of wild ducks have arrived for the winter.

The ducks will eat free food at Lake Merritt while ice and snow prevail in other sections of the city.

Ducks Safe

And the lake is a safe place. Only a duck quack away is the heart of Oakland's business district and obviously hunters cannot hunt in the center of a city.

Oakland spends $2,000 annually in feeding wild ducks and has built a special feeding pool and island in the center of the lake, which, it so happens, is the only tidal lake in the heart of any American city.

It was back in 1915 that a band of starving ducks arrived here. Tender-hearted park officials bought several sacks of grain. That started the feeding program which has continued since.

Boarders Gain

The news spread and year by year the duck boarders increased. Lake Merritt covers 155 acres. It is one of the most popular bird resorts in the west, and the only one in the center of a city.

An interesting phase of the season is banding day. Traps are placed along the shore until the ducks become accustomed to them and suddenly, while feeding, the doors swing shut.

$100 For Bands

The birds are removed one by one and a soft copper band is fastened to a leg after which the duck is released. This work costs $100 annually.

A sheep herder killed a duck with an Oakland band on its leg. So did an Eskimo dwelling north of the Arctic circle. Oakland banded ducks have been shot in every far western state but they do not seem to stray to the eastern part of the United States.

SARAZEN WINS VICTORY IN TOURNEY

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—UP—Conserving his strength for the important round Saturday and Sunday, Gene Sarazen of the Fresh Meadow country club, Long Island, N. Y., a favorite in the first national match play open golf tournament being staged here, stepped out today to win his opening matches as quickly as possible.

Meanwhile two other prominent golfers were forced into extra notes before they could enter quarter-final round, Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente and John J. McHugh, San Francisco amateur, battled to the 24th green before McHugh conceded the match to Diegel, and George Von Elm, Los Angeles, could not gain victory over James Thomson of Colorado Springs, Colo., until the 20th hole.

Sarazen will meet Al Espinosa of Chicago tomorrow morning and, if victorious, will then go against the winner of the match between Fred Morrison of Alhambra, Calif., and Joseph Ezar of Chicago to determine who shall enter the final round from the lower half.

Al Espinosa of McLean, Ill., will oppose Von Elm and Willie Goggin of San Francisco will furnish opposition for Diegel. Sarazen defeated Mark Fry of Oakland in the morning round, 5 and 4. He eliminated Willard Hutchinson of Chicago this afternoon by the same score.

Mortie Dula of Long Beach had bowed to Diegel this morning, the Agua Caliente golfer winning three and one, and McHugh had eliminated Louis Nevi of Ely, Nev., two-up. Both Diegel and McHugh weakened late in the afternoon and this led to their sensational overtime battle. McHugh pulled up even with his opponent on the 16th hole and from then on they halved holes, each encountering trouble in equal amount. Approaching the 24th hole, McHugh went into a trap, his second was short his third went into the rough and his next into a trap. Diegel was on in two and McHugh made his concession.

A good day was enjoyed by Abe Espinosa. He beat Tommy Armour, 5 to 4, and then nosed out Frank Walsh, 2 and 1.

Goggin's familiarity with the course gave him a victory over Wilfred Cox of Brooklyn, who had eliminated Harry Cooper in the first round, on the 20th hole just before dark.

Another sensational performance was by Morrison, who defeated Horton Smith of New York, 2 and 1, before crowding Ralph Guldahl of Dallas, Tex., out of the competition, 4 and 2.

All the survivors tonight were professionals.

HIGH QUINTETS SPLIT TWO GAMES

The Richmond Union High school varsity quintet, yesterday afternoon went down before the Emeryville High school cagers by a score of 19 to 12.

However, the Richmond High school B squad defeated the Emeryville B team 18 to 7 in a rather one-sided contest.

Accurate long floor shots by the Emeryville varsity guards were the principal factors in the downfall of the Richmond varsity yesterday afternoon. The Richmond boys certainly possessed the best brand of passwork, but their long shots could not compare with the mid-floor shots of the Emeryville guards. The defense of Richmond was almost as strong as it was in last week's game with Crockett, but the Emeryville players overcame this difficulty by shooting long, accurate shots over the heads of the local five.

Emeryville started off in fast style, and was leading 6 to 3 at the end of the first quarter. The score at halftime was 12 to 8 in favor of Emeryville. The third quarter was a fortunate one for the visitors, with the result that they were leading the locals, 18 to 8 at the beginning of the fourth period. The Richmond boys started many attacks into enemy territory during the final quarter but were unable to make their shots count for winning pointage. The entire varsity game was a rather ragged affair, marked by much tumbling and collisions that gave variety to the contest.

The Richmond B team displayed a caliber of basketball completely superior to that of the visiting Emeryville Spartans. The local team showed far greater speed and accuracy than they did in the contest with Crockett, and last night gave promise of making a good record in future contests for this season.

The Richmond varsity yesterday afternoon included: Masek, 2, Boschetti, 4, forwards; Hofer, center; Scarsella, Sanfilippo, 2, guards; substitutes, Rollino, O'Brien, forwards; Passoni, Kenney, center; Westman, Drexel, 4, guards.

The Emeryville varsity included: Gomez, 2, Senoff, 8, forwards; Goodale, 4, center; Duncan, 2, Lewison, 3, guards; substitute, Crestler, guard.

The Richmond B team consisted of: Santella, 6, Carl Johnson, forwards; Wilson, 1, center; Dwyer, 4, Collins, 3, guards; substitutes, Dodge, 2, E. Johnson, forwards; Livingston, center; Transue, 2, Lutz, Anthes, guards.

The Emeryville B athletes were: Hilton, 4, Walsh, forwards; Masek, 2, Boschetti, 4, forwards; Hofer, center; Scarsella, Sanfilippo, 2, guards; substitutes, Rollino, O'Brien, forwards; Passoni, Kenney, center; Westman, Drexel, 4, guards.

Word Battle Loses Game For Golfer

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—UP—After a war of words with various committees, Eddie Gayer, pro at Twin Orchards club, Chicago, today was adjudged out of the national open match play championship and a caddy at the same club was named his victor.

The argument started during their morning round when Joe Ezar, caddy, drove into an old road covered with pine needles. He obtained permission from an official to ground his club. Gayer protested at the time. They arrived at the eighteenth all square, but Gayer announced that he had won the hole in question and was the match winner, two and one.

The officials decreed an extra hole, which Ezar won.

Though a survivor in play, Ezar announced after a conference with Gayer that his connections with Twin Orchards club are severed.

BEAR QUINTET NAMED AT U. C.

BERKELEY, Dec. 5.—Eighteen University of California basketball players were named last night on the varsity squad for the 1930-31 season. The squad cut was made at the final practice of the fall training period. The men named on the squad will open pre-season practice December 20 and will remain at the university, practicing twice daily, during the Christmas recess.

The so-called cut was announced by Harold "Doc" Houvenin, assistant varsity coach, since C. M. "Mibs" Fifer, who has just been re-appointed head coach for the current season, has not yet taken over the reins. Fifer will take over the coaching on December 20, with Houvenin continuing as assistant.

When practice resumed the Bears will enter a period of intensive drill for their first game—Oregon State college, on December 27, which comes after the first three days of preparation.

Following is the varsity squad as announced by Houvenin: Forwards—Joseph Kintana, Williams; Dana Murdoch, Jr., Oakland; Eugene Gregerson, Watsonville; Francis Smart and Weston Gorman, Berkeley; Lawrence Selfert, Lincoln; Clarence Granter, San Leandro, and Elmer Johnson, Escalon.

Centers—Edwin Warhurst, San Francisco; Jack Reed, Oakland; and Arthur Evans, Orange. Guards—Captain Joel Coffield, Napa; Carl Vardt, San Francisco; William Davis, Long Beach; John Kopke, Oakland; Theodore Ohashi, Stockton; Homer Krowitz, Evansville, Ind.; and Ralph Stone, Petaluma.

Only three of the men named on the roster of the University of California basketball varsity—Captain Joel Coffield, William Davis and Carl Vardt, all guards—have earned letters in previous campaigns. This leaves the Golden Bears without cut thoroughly experienced center or forward material.

Causes Of Big Depression Are Told At Meeting

PARIS, Dec. 5.—UP—Twelve reasons for the economic depression which is being felt throughout the world were assigned today by experts of 28 nations, meeting under the auspices of the International Chamber of Commerce.

The delegates were not in complete agreement. For one thing, they rejected a 13th cause, advanced by Sir Arthur Balfour—uneven distribution of gold. Silas H. Straw, of Chicago, a great economist and chairman of the delegation, himself advanced five causes.

The twelve reasons given by the conferees as a whole for the world trade situation were:

Over production; decline in commodity prices; world agricultural crisis; industrial unemployment; political unrest; partial closing of several world markets; varied bases for monetary circulation; disequilibrium between short and long term credits; fall in silver prices; dumping of goods by Soviet Russia; unprecedented taxation to meet international indebtedness; excessive state participation in private enterprise.

New Discovery To Aid Talkies

Hollywood, Dec. 5.—UP—The faint, whirling noise that has annoyed motion picture fans in the moments when none of the actors of the screen was talking, has been eliminated, the Paramount studios announced tonight.

With a new microphone slight mechanical noises picked up during the recording have been avoided. When no actor is speaking or no sound effect is desired, the theater equipment will be entirely silent, it was claimed. The recording device first was used in Ruth Chatterton's new picture, "The Right to Love."

FIFTY KILLED BY POISON FOG

or other deaths continued to reach the authorities hourly. Many were removed to hospital.

Cattle died in the fields. This was believed to have disproved earlier theories that a heavy fog lying over the valley for the past three days had held coal smoke and fumes within houses, killing the inhabitants.

Poisoned fog was another theory advanced as the authorities groped for a cause for the silent death which apparently held an area some 40 miles long along the Meuse river in its cold grasp.

The region affected by the mysterious blight extends along the Meuse from Liege to Namur. The valley in this section, scene of great battles in the world war a dozen and more years ago, includes the towns of Andenne, Huy, Scilles, Bas Oia, Jehay, Hermandal, Selayn, and others, of which Huy and Andenne are the largest.

It was not known early in the investigation to what extent if any, the towns had suffered in the wave of deaths. Fear, however, grew as the death figures mounted in reports from towns and hamlets along the stricken countryside.

The region is in the heart of Southern Belgium, in the Provinces of Namur and Liege. Liege is some 12 miles from the Rhineland and Namur is 25 miles from the French border.

An official corps of physicians conducting an inquiry into the Meuse valley deaths, indicated they believed the tragedies were due to a combination of extraordinary dampness, fog and cold.

It was pointed out by some that the Meuse valley was the scene of many battles in the world war, and that possibly there were still old gas shells which the unusual weather had somehow caused to explode their poisonous contents.

In a normal atmosphere such poison gases arising from old war munitions would float away, but it was agreed that under a long, heavy fog the gases might be held close to the earth with fatal consequences.

BILL HAINES
IN PERFECT ROLE
If you like laughs combined with mystery you will enjoy William Haines in "Remote Control," his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talkie which will be shown to day at the Fox-California theater.
In this picturization of the New York stage hit Haines plays the part of a radio announcer who gets his station mixed up with a gang of bandits who use the broadcast plant as a means of communication. A "clairvoyant" who conducts radio talks acts as the master mind.
Haines, in one of the most hilarious scenes ever filmed, finds his station short of talent. In desperation he puts on the whole program himself, offering a bizarre story as well as impersonating Amos 'n' Andy. It is this discovered ability as a vocal mimic that enables him to extricate himself from disaster and lead to the arrest of the bandits after a sensational robbery in which he finds himself implicated.
In directing the latest Haines opus, Edward Sedgwick apparently spared no pains in keeping the plot moving at a fast pace. The director deserves considerable credit for his astute handling of the comedy situations, which in less capable hands would have interrupted the continuity of the narrative.
Haines has never been seen to her advantage in a role which called for as much straight dramatic acting as comedy. The supporting cast is uniformly good. Mary Moran in the leading feminine role showing herself to be not only one of the most attractive players on the screen but an actress of no small ability. Charles King scoring with the song hit of the picture, "Just a Little Closer"; Polly Moran being the usual riotous self as the radio beauty expert; John Millan as the villain; Jill C. Nugent, Wilbur Mack, Edward Brophy, Warner P. Richmond, Russell Hopson and James Donlan in minor roles.

County Tax Money Given To Dodge
First installment of county taxes became delinquent yesterday and payments being made today were at the expense of a penalty.
A total of $1,004,602.62 in county taxes have been deposited with Charles L. Dodge, county treasurer by Martin W. Joost, county tax collector.
It is expected an additional $1,250,000 will be given the treasurer by the end of next week, to bring the total collection for the first installment to approximately $2,250,000.
Appropriation of the tax money to the various funds will be the work of A. L. Sullenger, county auditor as soon as the collections have been completed.

Girl Found Who Resembles Lisa
SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—A striking resemblance between Miss Stella Lacey, Springfield, and the famous painting of Mona Lisa of Leonardo da Vinci, was brought out recently when photographs of the painting and Miss Lacey were published side by side. Looking at the two pictures it was possible to see similarity in the eyes of the two subjects and a more striking similarity about the mouth. Last of all the noses of both are almost identical in contour. Other facial features bore a remarkable likeness.

GRENLEY, Colo.—Frank Noles is 69 years old, but he doesn't know his strength. Noles' young 200-pound son-in-law charged in court that the elder man knocked him down. Noles admitted the assault but said he thought the son-in-law must have tripped on a chip.

ON YOUR BACK TO BE SHOWN AT FOX

One half of the world never knows how the other half lives. The Fox movie-tone production, "On Your Back" which comes to the Fox-California theater tomorrow, well illustrates that fact.
The story deals with the behind-the-scenes career of a fashionable Fifth avenue modiste who builds up her great business through the slogan, "Wear Your Brains On Your Backs."
She cajoles, entreats and flatters her vain customers into buying gowns which they cannot afford, then introduces them to wealthy men who frequent her establishment. The result is that her shop becomes the rendezvous of some of the millionaires who gather there every afternoon for tea with the "lilies of the field."
Irene Rich has the leading role of Julianne, the ambitious modiste who is doing everything for her son, Raymond Hackett.
Conflict enters the thrillingly human drama when a chorus girl whom her son loves gets caught in the net of "too much credit."
The choice she has to make when she realizes that she is expected to pay for the gowns and the stand the son takes by her side, is the highlight in the tense portrayal.
Adapted by Howard J. Green from Rita Weiman's magazine story, "On Your Back" was directed for the audible screen by Guthrie McClintic, producer of some of New York's biggest stage hits of the past decade.
Lone Defendorf, No. 7 and a comedy, "Won by a Nick."

The show is to start at 10:30 a. m. and will be featured by dances from Matilda Meyer's kiddies. A Christmas tree will be on the stage lighted in the regular manner.
Chief of Police Dan Cox and Fire Chief W. P. Cooper will see that everything is according to law to insure protection to the large number of children that day.
Boy Scouts will be on hand to assist in the handling of the crowd. They will also aid in passing the presents to the various children.
Even the physically disabled children will be given attention during the performance which will also include the showing of favorite comedy films.

INDIAN TRIBE PAYS HONOR TO SAINT

TUBAC, Ariz., Dec. 5.—UP—Council fires of the Papago and Yaqui Indians sent great clouds of smoke into the air tonight as hundreds of plumed and painted dancers performed the final rites of their three-day adoration of St. Xavier Del Bac, patron saint of the ancient mission here.
The dancers, falling exhausted in the dust at the end of their long ceremonial, told in pantomime the traditional story of how "the elder brother" on Baboquivari mountain joined with the "corvete" and other of Mother Earth's children to create the Redmen's world.
"The rattlesnake" was there when the world guarded by the great Colorado river came into being, and so were the "roadrunner," the "burning sun," the "yellow moon" and the many others.
Dancers of two tribes, too old now to take part in the dances, grunted their approval as the Indians ended for another year the great dance, Socha the little mission San Xavier, "White Flower of the Desert" was deserted, and the Indians began their journey back to the ranchos in the hills—to work and to dream for many moons of the feast of St. Xavier.

UTILITY FILES REPORT ON WORK

OAKLAND, Dec. 5.—Early snowfall and rainfall in the mountains and valleys have not yet produced any runoff to increase the storage of water in Lake Pardee, it was announced in the current report of Frank W. Hanna, chief engineer and general manager of the East Bay Municipal Utility District, made public today. Snow began to accumulate at Summit on Nov. 12, continuing to a depth of 30 inches on November 16, and diminishing to 12 inches on December first, according to Hanna's report. During this period Lake Pardee, the main storage reservoir of the district, dropped 13 feet, which means a loss of about 5 1/2 billion gallons, leaving approximately 60 billion gallons.

Upper San Leandro reservoir gained nearly one billion gallons during the last two weeks, inasmuch as the 33 million gallons daily now being brought in thru the Mokelumne pipe line were principally stored in that reservoir. San Pablo reservoir decreased 700 million gallons during the period.

Hanna's report shows that the rainfall for the season beginning September 1, 1930, at Lake Pardee was 2.66 inches; at Upper San Leandro, 3.15 inches; at San Pablo 2.38 inches; while the yearly normal at Chabot reservoir on December 1, was 3.34 inches.

Local reservoirs of the Utility District now contain approximately ten billion gallons of water. The level of water in Lake Pardee will not be reduced much further by drafts for power, inasmuch as the district plans always to keep at least a year's supply there to provide against emergencies, according to Hanna.

Early rainfall and the beginning of the accumulation of snow at an earlier date than last year indicated that this year's harvest of new water will be much earlier than last year. The water first flowed over the spillway at Lake Pardee early in May of this year, marking the first time the big lake has been filled to capacity.

Cash receipts at the business of fices of the district for the month of November amounted to $341,322.44. There were 120 applications for new services received during the month of November, of which 68 were in the Oakland division, 33 in the Berkeley division, 5 in the Alameda division and 14 in the Richmond division.

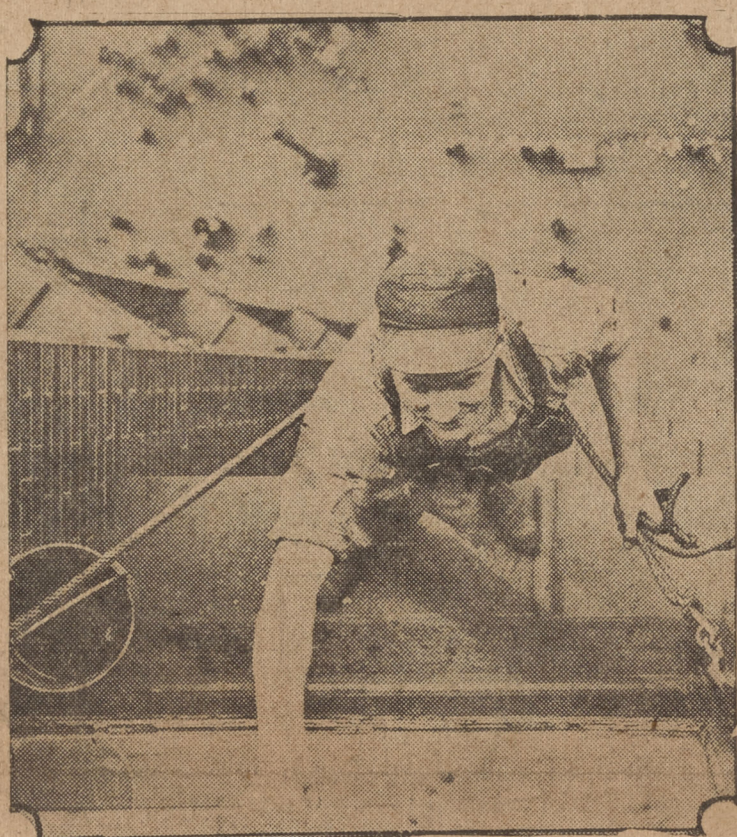

Field servicemen traveled 17,189 miles by automobile in the performance of their duties during the month.

Slave Descendants Hunted In U.S. To Preserve Church

WESTON ZOYLAND, Somerset, England, Dec. 5.—UP—Almost 250 years ago, 500 Somerset peasants dragged their chains out of the village church of Weston Zoyland and marched along a trail of blood to the sea to be transported to life-long slavery in America.

Today the church where their enslavement began is threatened with ruin. The Rev. Price Davies, vicar of Weston Zoyland, has determined to trace if possible the descendants of the 500 slaves in America, hoping to obtain the funds necessary for its preservation.

1665 Event It was in July, 1665, that the rebel army of the profligate Duke of Monmouth fled through Somerset closely pursued by the forces of James II. At Sedgemoor, near Weston Zoyland, the royal troops under Lord Faversham caught up with the rebels and routed them.

The Duke of Monmouth escaped but more than 500 Somerset peasants who had rallied to his standard were captured. On the day after the battle, they were herded into Weston Zoyland church.

Sold As Slaves Later they were thrown into the holds of ships and transported to the American colonies. How many of them survived to be sold into slavery will never be known.

The Rev. Davies believes many of the descendants of these men are prosperous American citizens. If he can trace any of them, he will appeal to them to save the old church.

The church is a beautiful old structure and was a century old when the battle of Sedgemoor was fought. It has a fine roof of carved oak which the vicar is particularly anxious to save.

AVIATOR TELLS OF PRISON ESCAPE

MADRID, Dec. 5.—UP—The Her- aldo de Madrid created a sensation today when it published an article purporting to have been written and signed by Commander Ramon Franco, daring Spanish aviator, describing his escape recently from a jail cell.

Commander Franco, the best known aviator in Spain, was sentenced to eight months in prison for political activities against the present regime. He and a companion, however, escaped on the eve of his removal to prison. The authorities said Franco could have walked out had he wanted to do so, rather than go to the trouble of breaking through iron bars.

The article in the Her- aldo de Madrid today has Commander Franco go to some length to describe just how he broke out of his cell, and what his emotions were. It portrays him as flaunting his feat in the face of the authorities. It does not disclose his whereabouts. There has been no little speculation that he is hiding in Madrid, itself, despite rumors of his having been seen in Portugal and elsewhere.

Tells Story The title of the article was, "Impressions of a Flight." It describes minutely the sensations of Franco and his companion as they crawled through the window of their cell and fled down the street to a waiting automobile.

The description was written in short, graphic sentences. Friends of the aviator said the firm handwriting was that of the missing flier.

The article said: "That accursed sentinel who never sleeps—I have lost the iron with which to force the bars. If I do not find it I will force them with a kick."

No One Appears "If anyone appears now I will dispose of them with a blow. I am lucky. No one appears."

"This knotted rope! Our weight? The sentinel continues to look. What luck! The rope is tangled! I will straighten it as I lower myself."

"Just before we start, the alarm clock in Reyes' (his companion) pocket goes off as if it were the prison alarm bell."

"O try to leave head first. Impossible. I make it feet first. But before leaving, I make my jail will. My wine and cognac I leave to No. 10, the punching ball to prisoners of the troops, the valise to anyone who wants it."

Lower Selves "We lower ourselves rapidly. The sentinel is restless. Before I arrive at the first window, the rope becomes tangled. My companion slides down on top of my head and I fall several feet to the ground."

"Reyes lowers himself more slowly. The sentinel walks his beat with his gun on his shoulder. Coughing at times. Now with speed toward liberty."

At the bottom of the article were the words "November 26, 1930, Ramon Franco." There was no date line.

Franco first sprang into prominence when he flew from Palos, Spain, to Buenos Aires, Argentina, in 1926, with two companions. He subsequently, after numerous adventures in aviation, went into politics.

He attacked the present regime insistently, writing articles against it, and speaking against the government. He was arrested on Oct. 11 for his political attacks, and sentenced Nov. 21 to eight months imprisonment.

Word Out Of Wire Brings Big Suit

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 5.—UP—Gertrude Griffin of Missouri filed suit in superior court today hoping to prove to a jury the word "not" is worth $2000.

With her husband, O. H. Griffin, she alleged a telegraph company here omitted the word "not" from a message which caused her to come to Arizona to seek a position as a school teacher in Yuma county, for which she was not eligible.

Mrs. Griffin said she received a telegram saying she was eligible and that she later learned the word "not" was in the original copy but left out.

THREE PAY ON GALLOWS FOR MURDERS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—California executed three men today for murders committed in robberies that netted them only small sums.

George Hyley, 21, was hanged at San Quentin at 10:03 a. m. Twelve minutes later Dr. L. L. Stanley, prison physician pronounced him dead.

George Davis, 25 and Alfred Boss, 34, went to their deaths at Folsom. Boss died first and Davis followed at 9:32 a. m.

Ryley with John Gomez was convicted of beating "Dad" Jones a Livermore taxi driver to death in the hills near that city after the pair had lured the aged man there and robbed him of little more than $20.

Ryley almost ran up the 13 steps and he was chewing gum when the black hood was placed over his head. Father Patrick Kerrigan, officiating at his first hanging became ill on the scaffold and had difficulty in finishing the rites. He remained however, until the end and had to be assisted from the gibbet.

The Livermore killer ate a hearty breakfast before going on his last walk. His body will be sent to Vallejo where his father lives. The dead youth left two letters, one to his sister, Mrs. Ramona DeLaca and his father George Ryley both of Vallejo.

Boss and Davis were hanged for the murder of Clifford Carey, a Sacramento grocery clerk November, 1929 in which they secured $25.

On the death march witnessed by approximately 70 men, Davis said "Good bye men, good luck to you." He expressed his appreciation for the treatment given him by the warden and said he held no ill feeling toward Warden Smith.

Boss smoked a cigarette and said nothing as he entered the gallows room. A Christian Science practitioner went with Davis to the gallows, while a Catholic priest, Father Patrick J. Cronin of Folsom went with Boss. Among the 48 witnesses who saw Ryley hung was Elmer Jones, son of the murdered man. After the execution he said, "Justice has been done."

Board Studies Building Plans

MARTINEZ, Dec. 5.—First steps toward the building of a new hall of records in the block just south of the present courthouse, were taken today when the board of supervisors began considering the problem of employing an architect to draft plans for the building.

The board has been making appropriations for the building for the past two years and the final appropriation is to be made next year. A total of $500,000 for the building will be raised.

It is proposed to employ an architect at once and begin the study of plans for the structure.

There is a dream-world, bordering the rim of life's reality, clear-cut and bright. Are all the stored-up memories of things that we hold close against our hearts at night. And warm them with our breath that they may give response again—and tenderly revive.

The Strangle-Hold of Apron Strings

BAD children probably first became a subject of serious discussion when Cain killed Abel, but bad parents were a topic much more in the news of the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection, which has just concluded its sessions in Washington. The idea was not, of course, that a parent is a deliberate villain. He (or she) is generally admitted, means well. But she (or he) is not infrequently bad, in the sense of being "bad for" a child's health, behavior, development and future.

Dr. Miriam Van Waters, psychologist, referee in a juvenile court and member of the White House Conference, has listed from her own observations of fathers, mothers and children no less than nineteen ways of being a bad parent.

Among the nineteen is the attitude of parental helplessness toward changing a child's defect of disposition, the sweeping parental judgment on the "wildness" of the modern young, the parental inferiority complex, the habit of making all decisions and keeping a child utterly dependent.

This last piece of parental "badness" perhaps has no more unhappy effect than in the too familiar case of the boy who is a spoiled mother's darling, and whose disposition and destiny may both be destroyed by the strangle-hold of apron strings. We call the attention of every over-indulgent mother of a son to a dreadful warning recently issued by Dr. C. W. Kimmins, a distinguished British specialist in child psychology. "It is the mother's darling," declared Dr. Kimmins, "who grows up to be the hen-pecked husband. It is a case of the husband transferring his dependence from his mother to his wife."

Once that stage is reached, the scientist offers in tragic conclusion, nothing can be done—not even by the young man's mother. For she has taught him to hug his chains.

"Most hen-pecked husbands," declares Dr. Kimmins, "are hen-pecked because they prefer it."

Can any mother of a "mother's darling" picture for him a worse fate than to be the meek and downtrodden victim of a tyrannical wife? Yet it is exactly this fate which the mother herself is preparing when she strings him so tightly to her apron strings that he must clutch his wife because he has never learned to walk alone.

THE relation between mother and son can be so beautiful that one wonders why it is ever spoiled by over-protective dominance and indulgence, the latter often carried to the point of making favoritism. All of us have known delightful small boys who were not out of kilter before their mothers were teaching them to be "not 'fussy' but 'men'." Such a little son learns pluck, self-reliance, unselfishness, courtesy from his mother. Through her, he grows up with a self-respecting attitude toward all women, for she neither tyrannizes over him nor slavishly worships.

If he has a sister, the wise mother strings.

When sweet potatoes first come into the market we welcome them, eagerly and candidly and baked ones have an honored place on our menus. About this time, however, they are no longer a novelty, and while we still want them, we want them in some new guise.

Here is one product on which nature and science have lavished equal attention, for while nature has provided a nourishing food that is distinctive and delicious in flavor, cooking experts have devised innumerable ways of preparing it.

Some faint idea of the general liking for sweet potatoes can be found in the fact that annually we consume between seventy and eighty million bushels in this country. In the North the light variety that becomes dry and mealy when cooked is most popular; in the South they prefer the deep yellow, moist ones called yams.

Cooking methods for both are the same. Sweet potatoes are usually boiled or baked in their skins; often they are served plain, with butter and seasoning, but there are many ways of transforming them into a more interesting and palatable dish.

Some time ago I told you about stuffed baked potatoes where the pulp is mashed, combined with corn or pineapple or sausage, returned to the skin and baked for a few minutes. Today I will outline ways of using boiled sweet potatoes.

When croquettes are done, drain them for a moment on a piece of brown paper or a blotter to absorb excess fat. Serve very hot.

When You Buy Toys

By Emilie Hoffman

A VISIT to the toy shops reveals a bewildering assortment of toys—they seem to be getting more numerous each year and the woman who leaves her selections until she reaches the shops is not having an easy time of it.

She who is wise, however, has a clear idea of what her purchase will be. She has it all thought out. She buys toys to fit the child, for she knows a wrong toy not only makes a child unhappy but frequently causes fretfulness and nervousness.

It is impossible to advise any one just what toy to select. This depends largely upon environment and the child himself, but if you remember a toy should develop the child's imagination along right lines and be something with which he can associate himself you will select a suitable gift. It should be a satisfying toy of honest quality.

Even before children reach the school age they express their wishes and, of course, these should be considered to a certain extent, but toys that make self-expression possible are the best sort of toys and wise parents take this in consideration when making these selections.

When going on a toy shopping expedition it is well to consider a few points such as: Will the toy interest the child? Does it train him mentally or physically? If it is difficult to keep him out-of-doors an attractive outdoor toy will be an incentive. Likewise the child who fusses about the bath will show no reluctance if a boat or several water toys are at hand. Novelty spoons and soaps are also an inducement.

Before buying a game ascertain whether the child is interested in games. Do not buy games that are too old or too young for the child. Toys must keep step with the child's mental and physical development to be satisfying. Do not buy a toy for the future—it is the present that interests the child and gives him pleasure.

Examine a toy for durability. Make sure mechanical toys will work. If you buy a doll, select one that may be unclothed or if it is not much to the little girl.

In short, buy toys with which children can play in wholesome constructive activity and you will be giving them pleasure and you will not be "throwing away your money on toys."

Colored Fixtures to Rejuvenate Bathrooms

Dear Miss Zaiss:

We are doing some remodeling of our house, including doing over the bathroom which I would like to have in color for a change, as it has always been white heretofore. I would be very glad to have you suggest a proper color scheme for this room.

At present the side tiling and woodwork are white, the floor is white tile and all fixtures white porcelain like the old bathrooms, and we would not want to tear out these big fixtures. What could you suggest in the way of changes? The bedrooms on each side of the bath have cream paneled walls; there is a good deal of green in one room and orchid in the other. Now, do we have to have these same colors in the bathroom, or can we have new ones? Thank you very much for any help.

(MRS.) J. J. D.

Accessories Easily Added to Present Equipment

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

DURING the last few years builders and decorators and manufacturers have espoused the color cause with charming abandon, and nowhere has this movement found more enthusiastic expression than in the kitchen and bath. Here the old institutional white we were once so proud of has been so completely routed by gay color that even its immaculate claims now fail to move us. We not only want color . . . but more and more color . . . seeming reluctant to stop anywhere. And particularly is this true in our attitude toward such large fixtures as the kitchen stove and cupboards, pots and pans; even electric refrigerators are now done in smart modern colors.

In the bathroom, where first excursions in color were confined to minor accessories like the towels and mats and curtains, our next step forward included colored fixtures such as the tub, toilet seat and lavatory, wherever it was possible to install these luxurious permanent fittings in new construction or remodeling.

Later manufacturers saw the need of separate fixtures in color for those who could not completely remodel their rooms. Home makers might wish to have the bath decorated in the current mode, yet not possess the means to install all new equipment. A colorful new bath seat or cabinet would come well within their means, however, and provide the color accent required for modern rooms. So stools and towel racks, medicine cabinets, toilet seats and small tables in plain colors and mother of pearl tints soon made their appearance in home furnishing departments, side by side with laundry and kitchen equipment. And instead of turning out to be merely painted fixtures, they surprised us by being of plastic composition which carries the colors through.

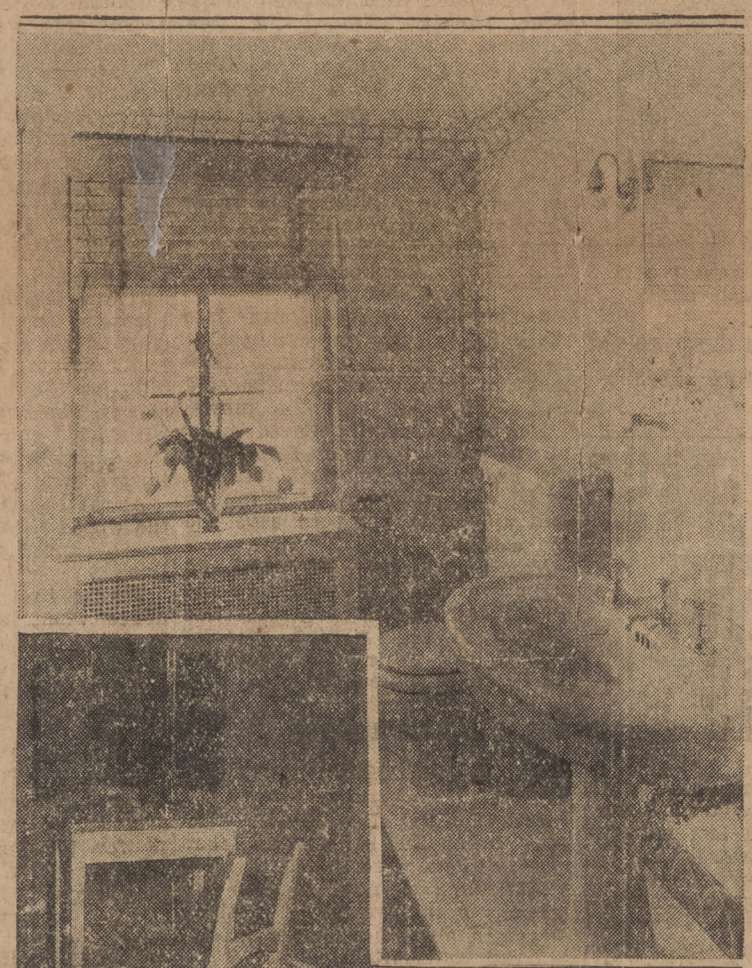

As a result of this ingenious development, today it is very easy to exchange white fixtures in the old-time bathroom for those in delicious color—and this without disturbing expensive permanent fixtures. But as in all decoration problems, definite rules govern the working out of these schemes, and it is well to have the aid of one trained in color selection before setting forth on a color spree of one's own.

A bathroom all in one color—wall, tiles, floor tiles, rug, towels, tub, toilet and basin all in the same hue—is almost as monotonous as a room in all white. For we are thinking in terms of the ensemble in everything today. Simplicity, harmonizing colors and contrasts are the rule in decoration as they are in dress, and this applies as directly to the bathroom as it does to the living room.

In Mrs. D.'s home, for example, both bedrooms have ivory walls; considerable green is used in the scheme of one room; orchid in the other. For

Proper Color Combinations to Make When the Demand is for More Color

By Alma Zaiss

HERE MODERN FIXTURES IN COLOR FURNISH THE KEYNOTE FOR AN INTERESTING SCHEME.

VERY NEW IS THIS TINY VANITY WITH BATH CHAIR IN CONTRASTING PASTEL COLORS.

In the bathroom we might choose an independent color scheme that would be in keeping with the two bedrooms, but a better effect would be obtained by ensembling the colors of both. As a first step, old or worn white bathroom fixtures may be replaced with such separate pieces in color as Mrs. D. cares to provide, leaving "as is" the large items—the tub, wash basin and toilet base. Under this heading would come the smaller appointments like the bath stool or chair; perhaps a new toilet seat or a vanity for accessories; a hamper or a medicine chest . . . any one of which may be had in a lovely pale green in plain or pearl finish. For the background of the scheme, then, we would suggest walls and ceiling in ivory tones and woodwork in pale seafoam green in harmony with the fixtures.

Yellow is a good third color for the orchid and green scheme, so we might add glass curtains of yellow organdy and a shower curtain of yellow fabric or water-proofed satin banded in orchid. Towels and bath cloths should be in orchid, and over the white tiled floor it would be nice to use a washable cotton chenille rug having an orchid ground and a pattern in which there are yellow and green.

Another favorite pastel scheme for the bathroom combines ivory, azure blue and peach . . . a trio that will appeal to many who have adjoining bedrooms in these colors and reference to the bath illustrated will help in visualizing such a scheme.

With peach colored fixtures for the keynote, we could have the walls and ceiling in old ivory, lattice work and justified in denying beauty and color and pattern to this tiny room which is nevertheless extremely important to the comfort and welfare of the family.

A Friendly Relationship

"MRS. SMITH, do you want another little girl?" asked little Ida, as she burst into her neighbor's home. "What do you mean?" said Mrs. Smith, rather taken back. "I mean me," Ida continued. "I don't want to live at my house any more. My mother spans me."

So often, children want a "divorce" from their parents, because they feel that these parents are cruel, unkind and unfair. It is surprising how quickly the young ones overcome these feelings and "forgive" the erring parents. But, nevertheless, deep down, these hurts rankle; and before very long, the "worm usually turns" and the child becomes openly rebellious and antagonistic. Then Mrs. Jones wonders why her Alice never wants to do anything she suggests; and Mrs. Brown can't understand why Billy seems to delight in annoying her.

If we want our children to feel friendly toward us, we must always treat them fairly and justly. We have to look at things from their point of view and try to understand the reasons and motives for their acts.

THIS SIMPLE LIFE

NEWS ITEM: Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Manley and children were rescued from their home today by the Fire Department and city ambulance service just as their existence was about to come to an end.

A representative of this column interviewed Mr. Manley on how they escaped this awful fate.

"It was this way," said Mr. Manley. "We have a lovely home, with all the modern appliances. One morning, about three weeks ago, I jumped out of bed to get my daily exercise on the electric vibrating machine. It didn't work.

"I didn't mind this at the time, although for lack of this daily exercise I felt a trifle sluggish. Well, I went down to breakfast with the kiddies. The electric egg beater and electric toaster were out of order, too. The package of hunger started to assail us. I was too weak to go to work and the kids too famished to start for school.

"I decided an electric massage would brace me up, but the mechanism refused to budge when I turned on the switch. By now, Mrs. Manley had gone to the basement to clean up the week's laundry, but the electric washing machine was out of commission, too. By now, things were getting serious.

"Lunch time came and my wife started to prepare the meal. When she opened the electric icebox, she was horrified to find all the food had spoiled. It seems the freezing apparatus had also broken down—or at least it didn't work.

"By now we were all feeling very weak and looking haggard. But Mrs. Manley decided no matter how terrible she felt and looked, she could at least keep up appearances. If only to encourage the kiddies. So she went up to the boudoir to primp her hair, but tragedy was still stalking through the house. Her electric curling iron refused to work.

"As for me, my body and spirit felt ravished. I felt if I could get the benefit of some violet rays, it might pep me up. But when I went to the bathroom and turned on the electric violet ray machine, it didn't even buzz. Something was evidently wrong.

"The children by this time were in a wretched shape, just like ourselves. As nightfall approached, with all the food spoiled in the refrigeratorless icebox, I thought at least a glass of cool water would do them some good—but all the ice cubes had melted, too.

"In an effort to take their minds off their suffering and my own—I decided to divert them with spirited music. But let me tell you, when Mrs. Manley tried to turn on the electric vacuum cleaner, that failed to work, too.

"Gradually, we all lost our minds. It seemed the days meant nothing—time had ceased—for of course the electric clock on the mantel had stopped. It grew worse and when Mrs. Manley tried to turn on the electric vacuum cleaner, that failed to work, too.

"And what," asked our reporter, "was the cause of this terrible calamity?"

"Oh," said Mr. Manley, "a fuse had blown out."

Delays Seen

If any of these proposals ever gain momentum, there is doubt that administration men could stop what they would regard as a disastrous drain on the treasury. It is believed likely now the administration's $175,000,000 relief fund proposal—$150,000,000 for public works to be expended by a cabinet committee, in addition to $25,000,000 for farm loans—will be increased by many millions before it goes to President Hoover's desk for signature.

The treasury is now preparing recommendations to eliminate delays which have held up many new projects. It is trying to cut down the time between appropriations for construction and the actual beginning of work. These expeditious suggestions will probably be submitted to congress shortly it was indicated.

Every government agency has been exerting itself since last June to line up the projects already authorized upon which Mr. Hoover's proposed $150,000,000 emergency appropriation can be spent. It was said. This would bring the total to about $650,000,000, three times the ordinary building expenditure of the government.

Plans of the gang to make a raid on a $100,000 shipment to a local bank were frustrated by the killing of Smith. The bank learned that the plan to make the shipment in an armored car had gotten outside, and it is believed that the Smith gang was at the bottom of the affair.

DEAD BANDIT NAMED IN 'BLOOD' HOLDUP

Positive evidence that Frank E. Smith, dead bandit leader was one of the men who participated in the $35,000 Rodeo bank robbery and killing of Constable Jerry McDonald in November, 1929 was in the hands of Sheriff R. L. Veale today.

The evidence consisted of the positive identification of a photograph of Smith by Dr. C. W. Hinckley, Portland, Ore., chiropractor as the man whom he treated a few days after the robbery, for a wound in the arm, declared by the bandit to have been suffered in an Oregon lumber camp.

Dr. Hinckley told Sheriff Veale that Smith gave the name of Arthur Anderson. Smith was shot in the arm by Constable McDonald before he fell mortally wounded.

DOCTORS CLOSE MEETING AT L.A.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—UP—The dentist, a mouth hygienically clean and public enlightenment are three great preventatives of cancer in its most common forms, two nationally famous authorities declared today in addresses at the closing session of the 16th annual convention of the radiological society of North America.

The two speakers were Dr. Francis Carter Wood, director of the Crocker institute for cancer research of New York, and Dr. Douglas Quick, director of the Memorial hospital of New York.

Dr. Quick declared that while the medical profession still does not know the cause of cancer, it knows something of the contributory causes, constant irritation on any part of the body, particularly in the most common forms of cancer of the mouth, contributes greatly, he said.

Improper Bridges

"Improperly fitted bridges or artificial teeth may cause the irritation," Dr. Quick explained. "So may the sharp edges of teeth, whether artificial or real. The dentist here is the important factor, if people would exercise proper oral hygiene and give the mouth a general cleansing regularly, they would be doing much to prevent cancer."

"The incipient cancer may show in a thickened area. In other parts of the body it may show first as an ulcer that does not heal readily. Cancer may result from moles that suddenly start to expand or from hairy moles. Pulling of hairs from moles is decidedly dangerous."

Dr. Quick said that if a person should have a sore, ulcer or mole that does not look or feel right he should immediately consult a doctor. Few, he said, do this because they have a wrong conception of a cancer and believe that cancer will inevitably result in death.

Can Be Cured

"Nothing could be farther from the real facts," Dr. Quick said. "Many things that are commonly believed of the condition in many instances is a very simple matter, and by having it removed a person avoids the things that many dread the most—extensive operations. All cancer is by no means incurable—if people see a physician soon enough."

In his talk Dr. Wood said that since the public had become enlightened on the subject of cancer, it had lent stimulus to progress in combating the disease by its demands.

"During the last few years," he said, "people through education have come to realize the seriousness of the cancer problem. They have brought pressure to bear upon the physicians, who in turn have obtained co-operation from the chemist, the physicist and the pathologist, until science, through co-operation, is making very decided steps in fighting the disease."

The radiological society's members employ radium and x-ray in treatment of disease. While the organization does not approve of unannounced cancer cures, which raise hopes of sufferers and then fail, it is interested in studying the disease and attempting cures.

Renee Adoree Is Reported Better

PRESCOTT, Ariz., Dec. 5.—UP—It seems Renee Adoree, film actress recuperating here from a severe illness, has emphatic ideas as to who shall be her nurse.

One nurse has resigned her position because she "couldn't get along" with the French-Spanish picture player. It became known today at the Flynn sanitarium here.

Outside of that, however, Miss Adoree was reported as resting well, although she still is "quite ill." She entered the sanitarium several months ago.

Trainmen Seek Six Hour Day

CLEVELAND, Dec. 5.—Another step in the fight of the "Big Five" to obtain a six hour working day for 1,500,000 railroad workers will be taken Monday when representatives of 16 railroad organizations meet with the executive committee of the former organization in Washington.

The drive for the six hour day was started at the "Big Five" convention in Chicago last month. At the same time the representatives will join operators in a stand against what they term "unfair competition on waterways and highways, and the developing threat of pipe lines."
